

Baccini Essato “Perfect Pair” Naming

The Baccini Essato system is used to print solar cells on solar panels. It uses a process called double-patterning: etching contact lines twice to make them deeper and more precise. Aligning the second etch is problematic. The perfect pairs solution delivers two identical printing screens at the same time, with the exact same frame and alignment. We need a short name that expresses this distinguishing feature.

Criteria

Baccini product names follow this pattern:

Applied Baccini Soft Line
Applied Baccini Rotary
Applied Baccini Essato

Since this product is a subset of Essato, we might extend the pattern in either of two ways:

Applied Baccini Essato (name)
Applied Baccini Essato (name) Screens

The final name should fulfill as many of these criteria as possible:

1. It has to suggest perfectly aligned double patterning.
2. It has to be in plain English (or Italian).
3. It should be very short, because the names are already so long.
4. It has to work well with “Screens,” the literal descriptor.
5. If it sounds good with Baccini, that will be a plus.
